

By: Risham Chokshi and Jasmine Feng

Photo Album Storyboard overview

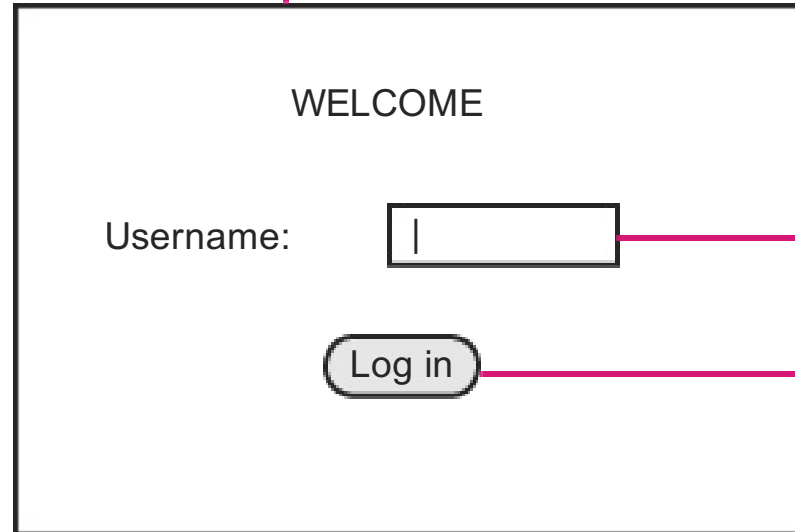

All the functionalities for each window is explained below.

Home/Login Screen 1

JFrame

Once photo album application is invoked,
This window opens up.
In this window, a user has to log in with its username.
If correct username is provided, they could see their albums and data.
If username provided is admin, it would open window with admin rights.

JTextField

JButton

2 3

The numbers represent the page it would go to next. So from here, it could go to 2 or 3.

Admin View 2

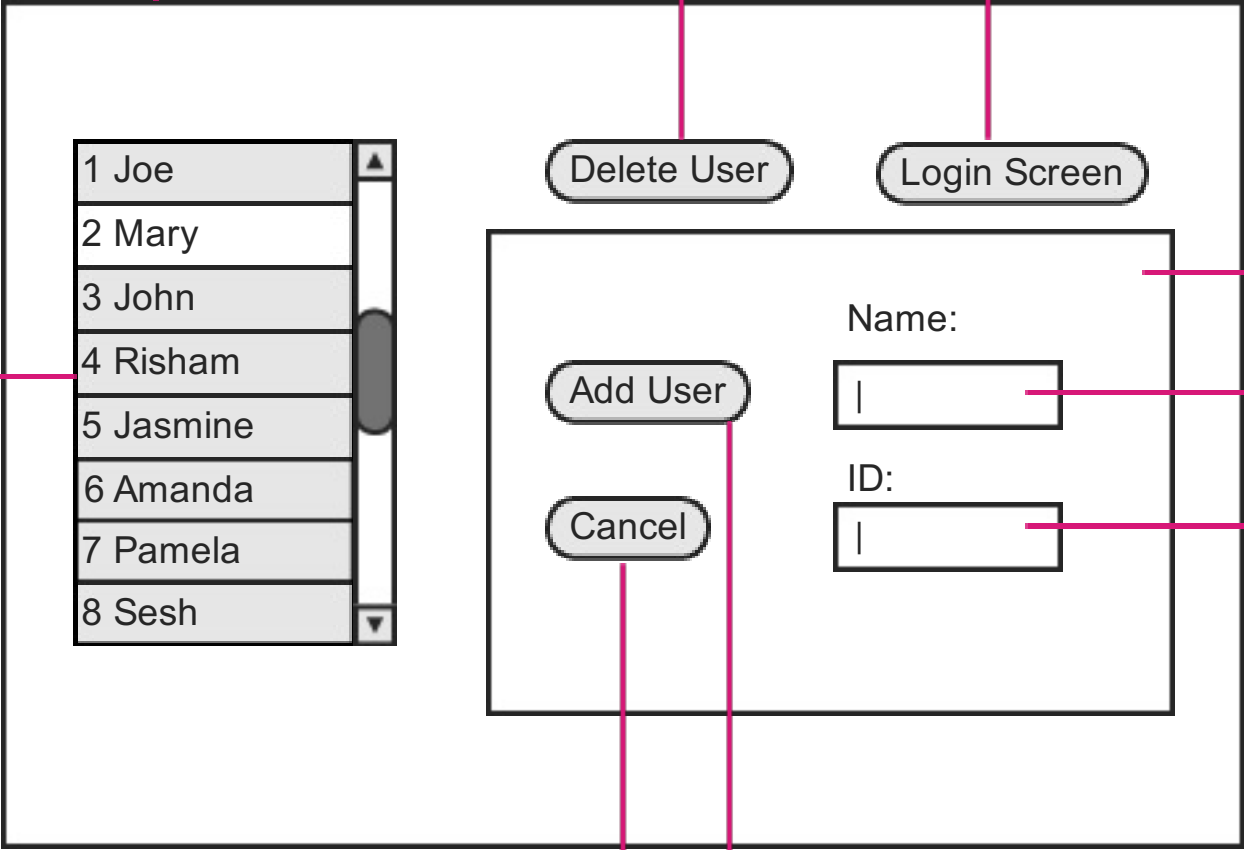

JFrame

JButton 2

JButton 1

This window is opened if username provided is admin in user login page. In this window, you can add user, delete user and view all the users. You also have an option to go back to the user login page.

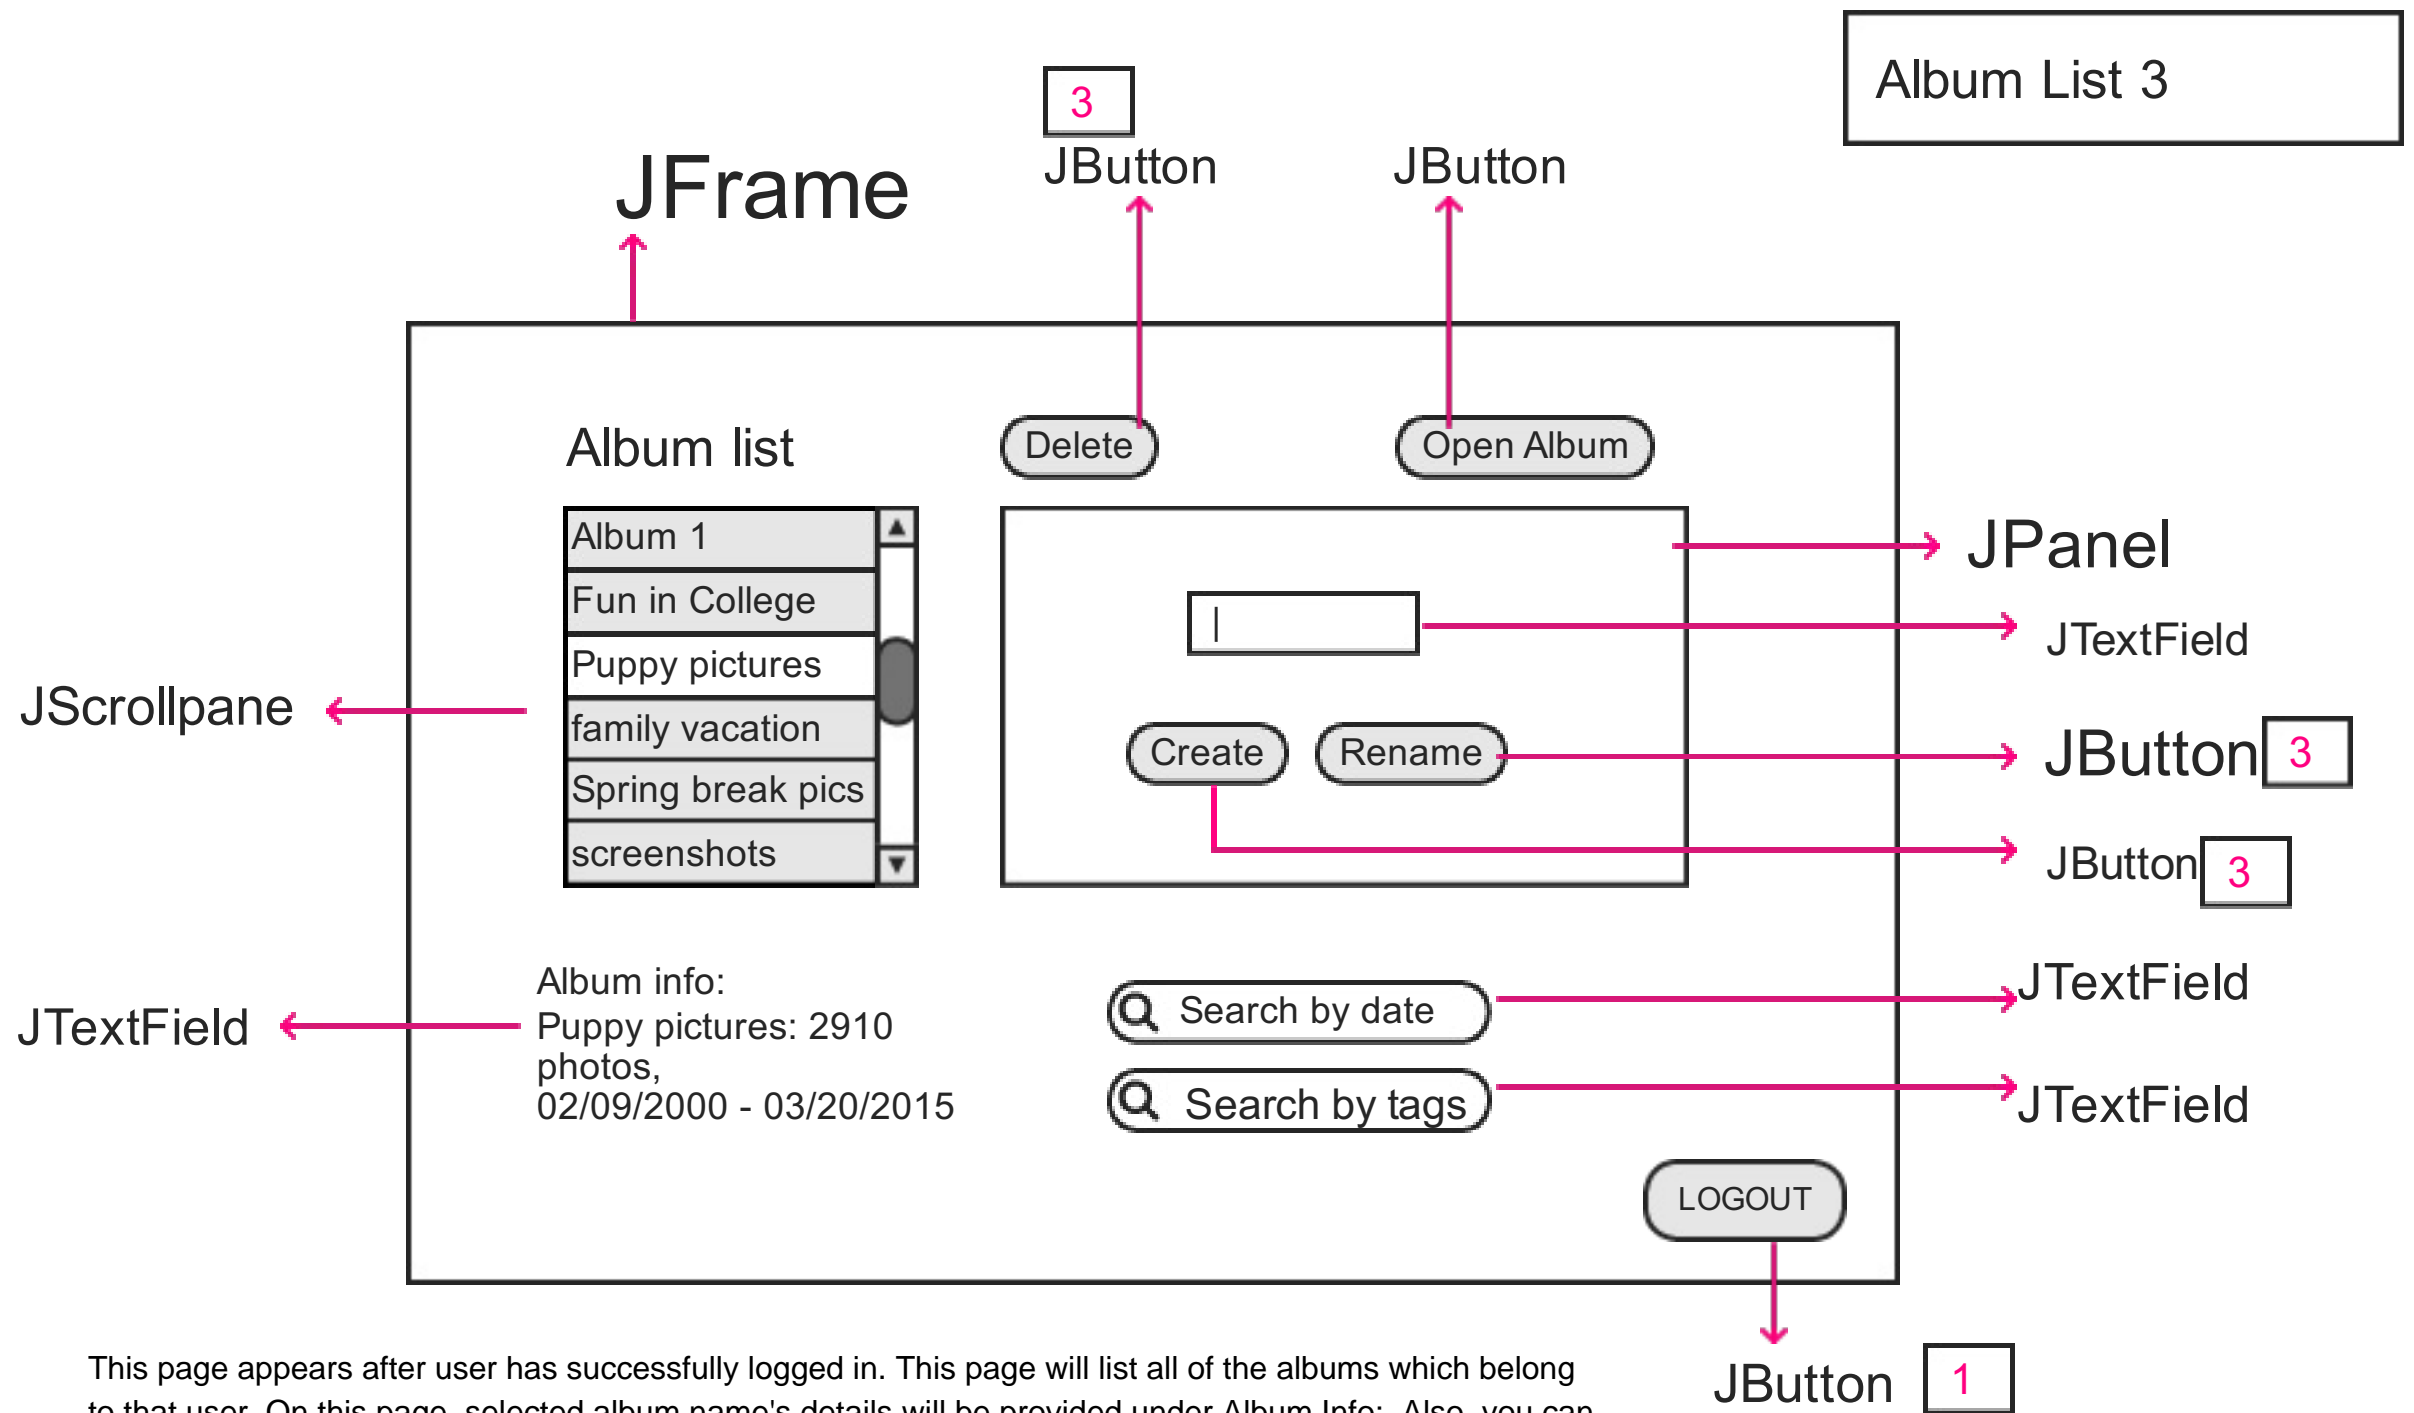

JScrollPane

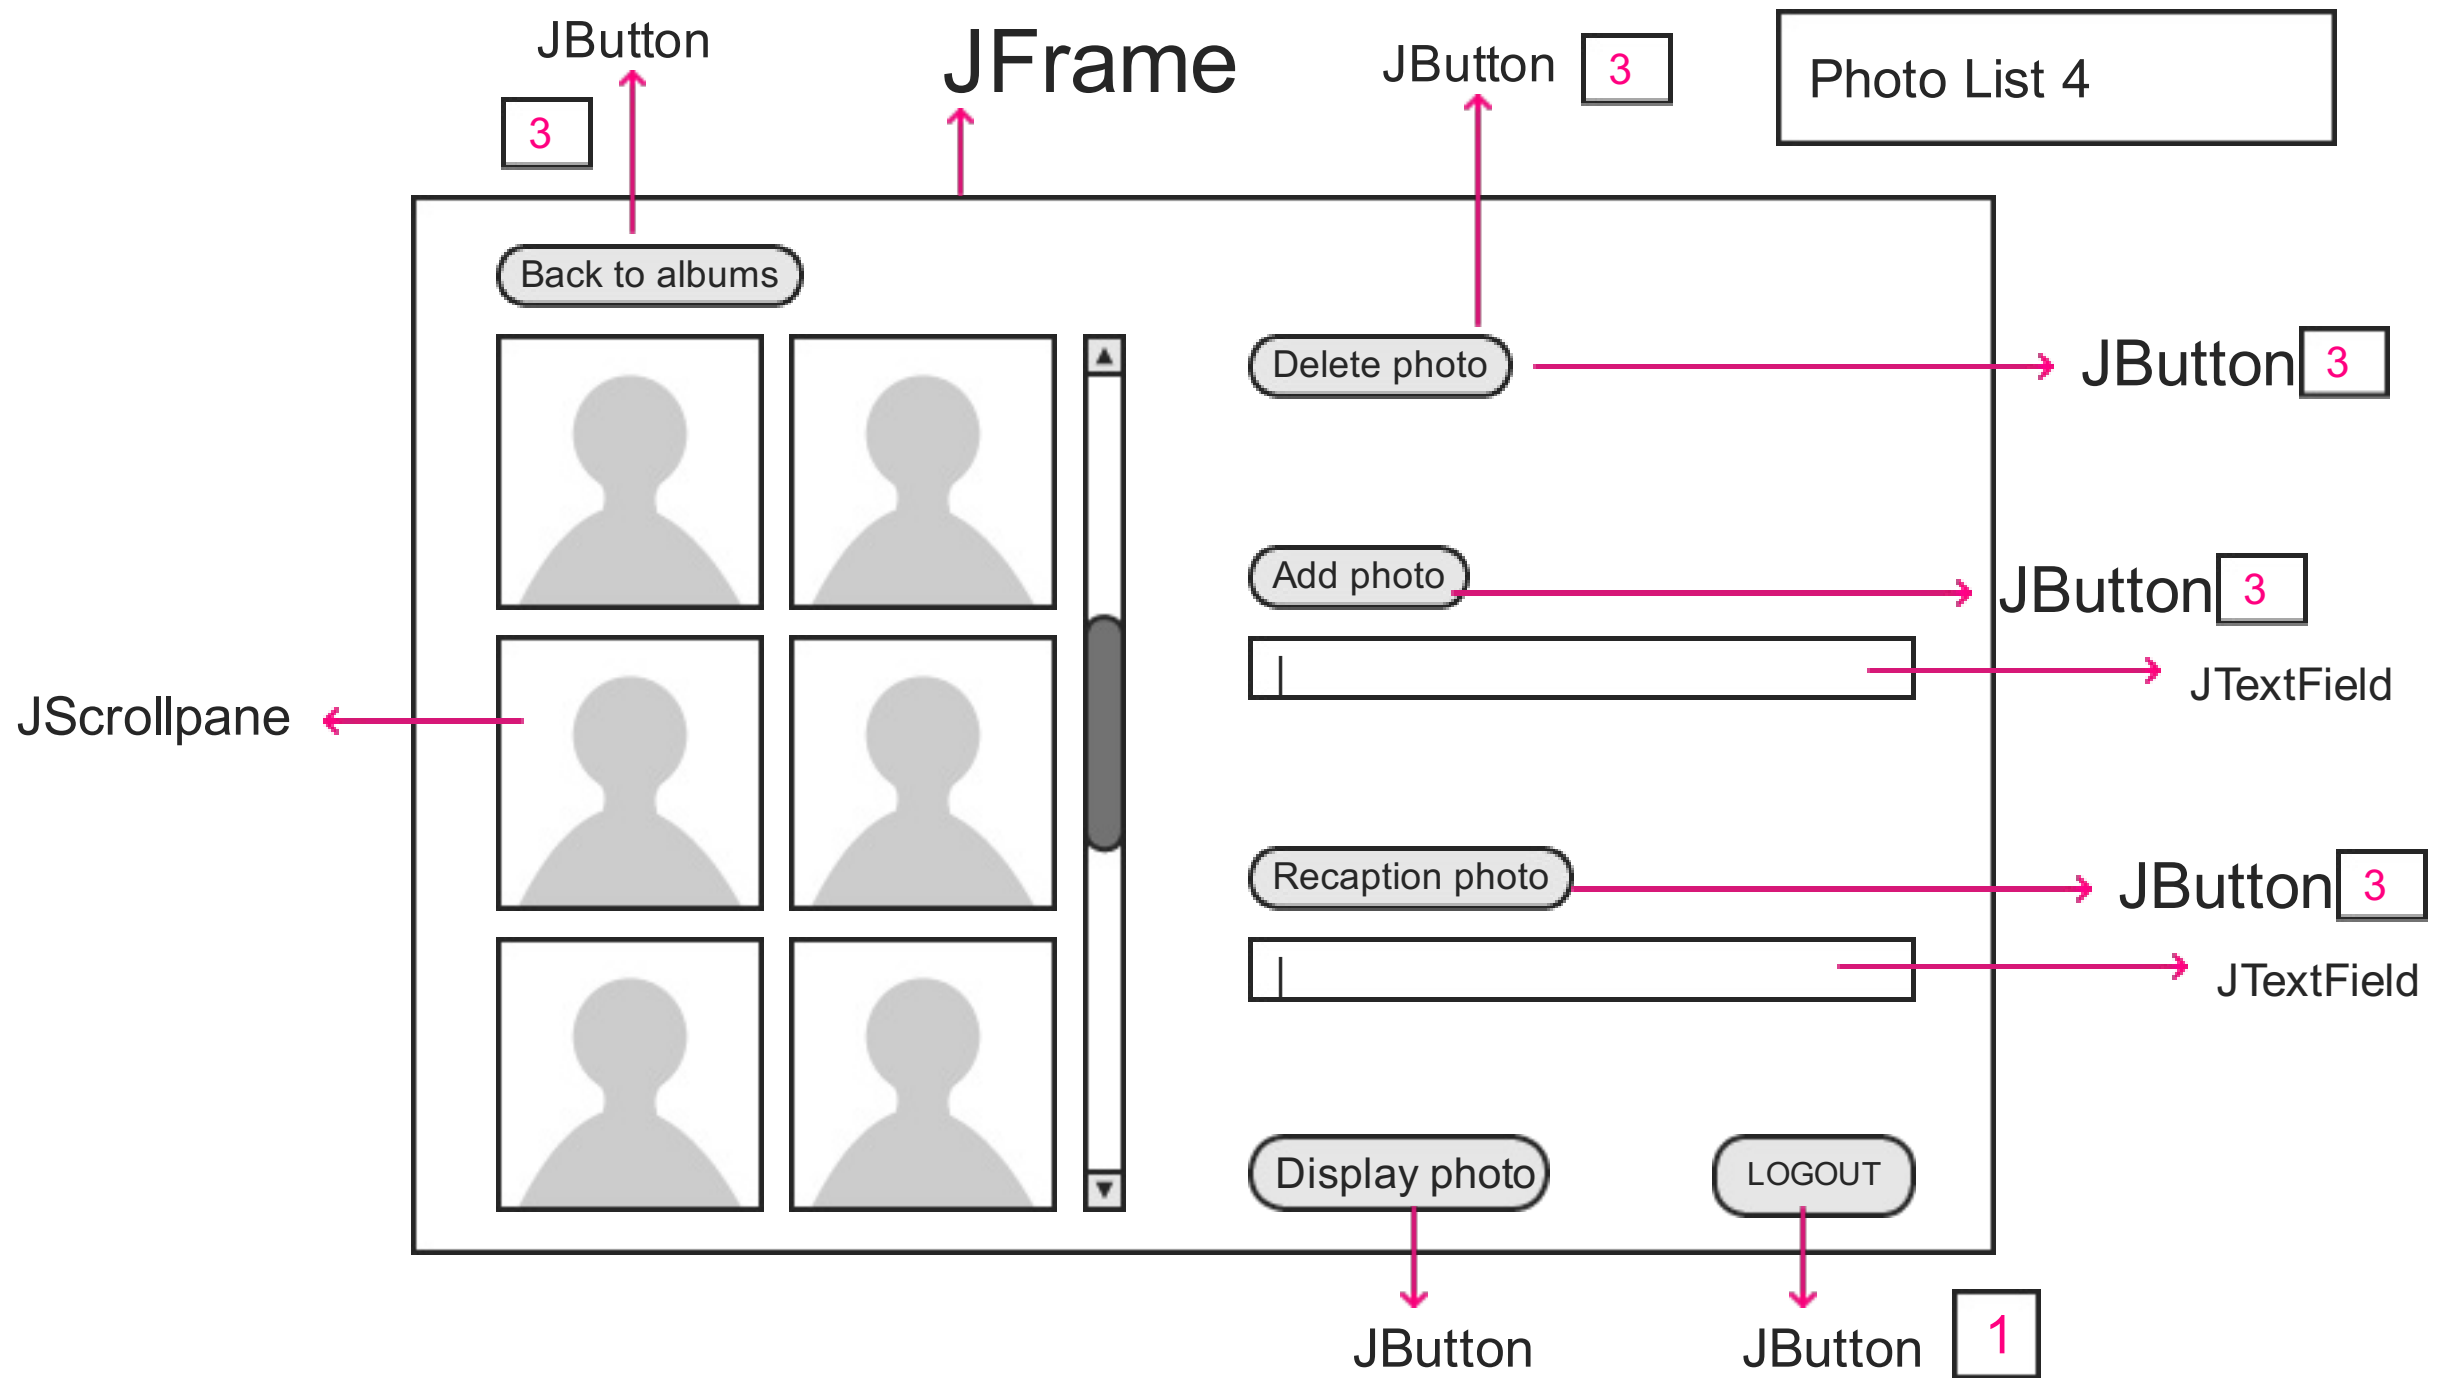

JPanel

JTextField

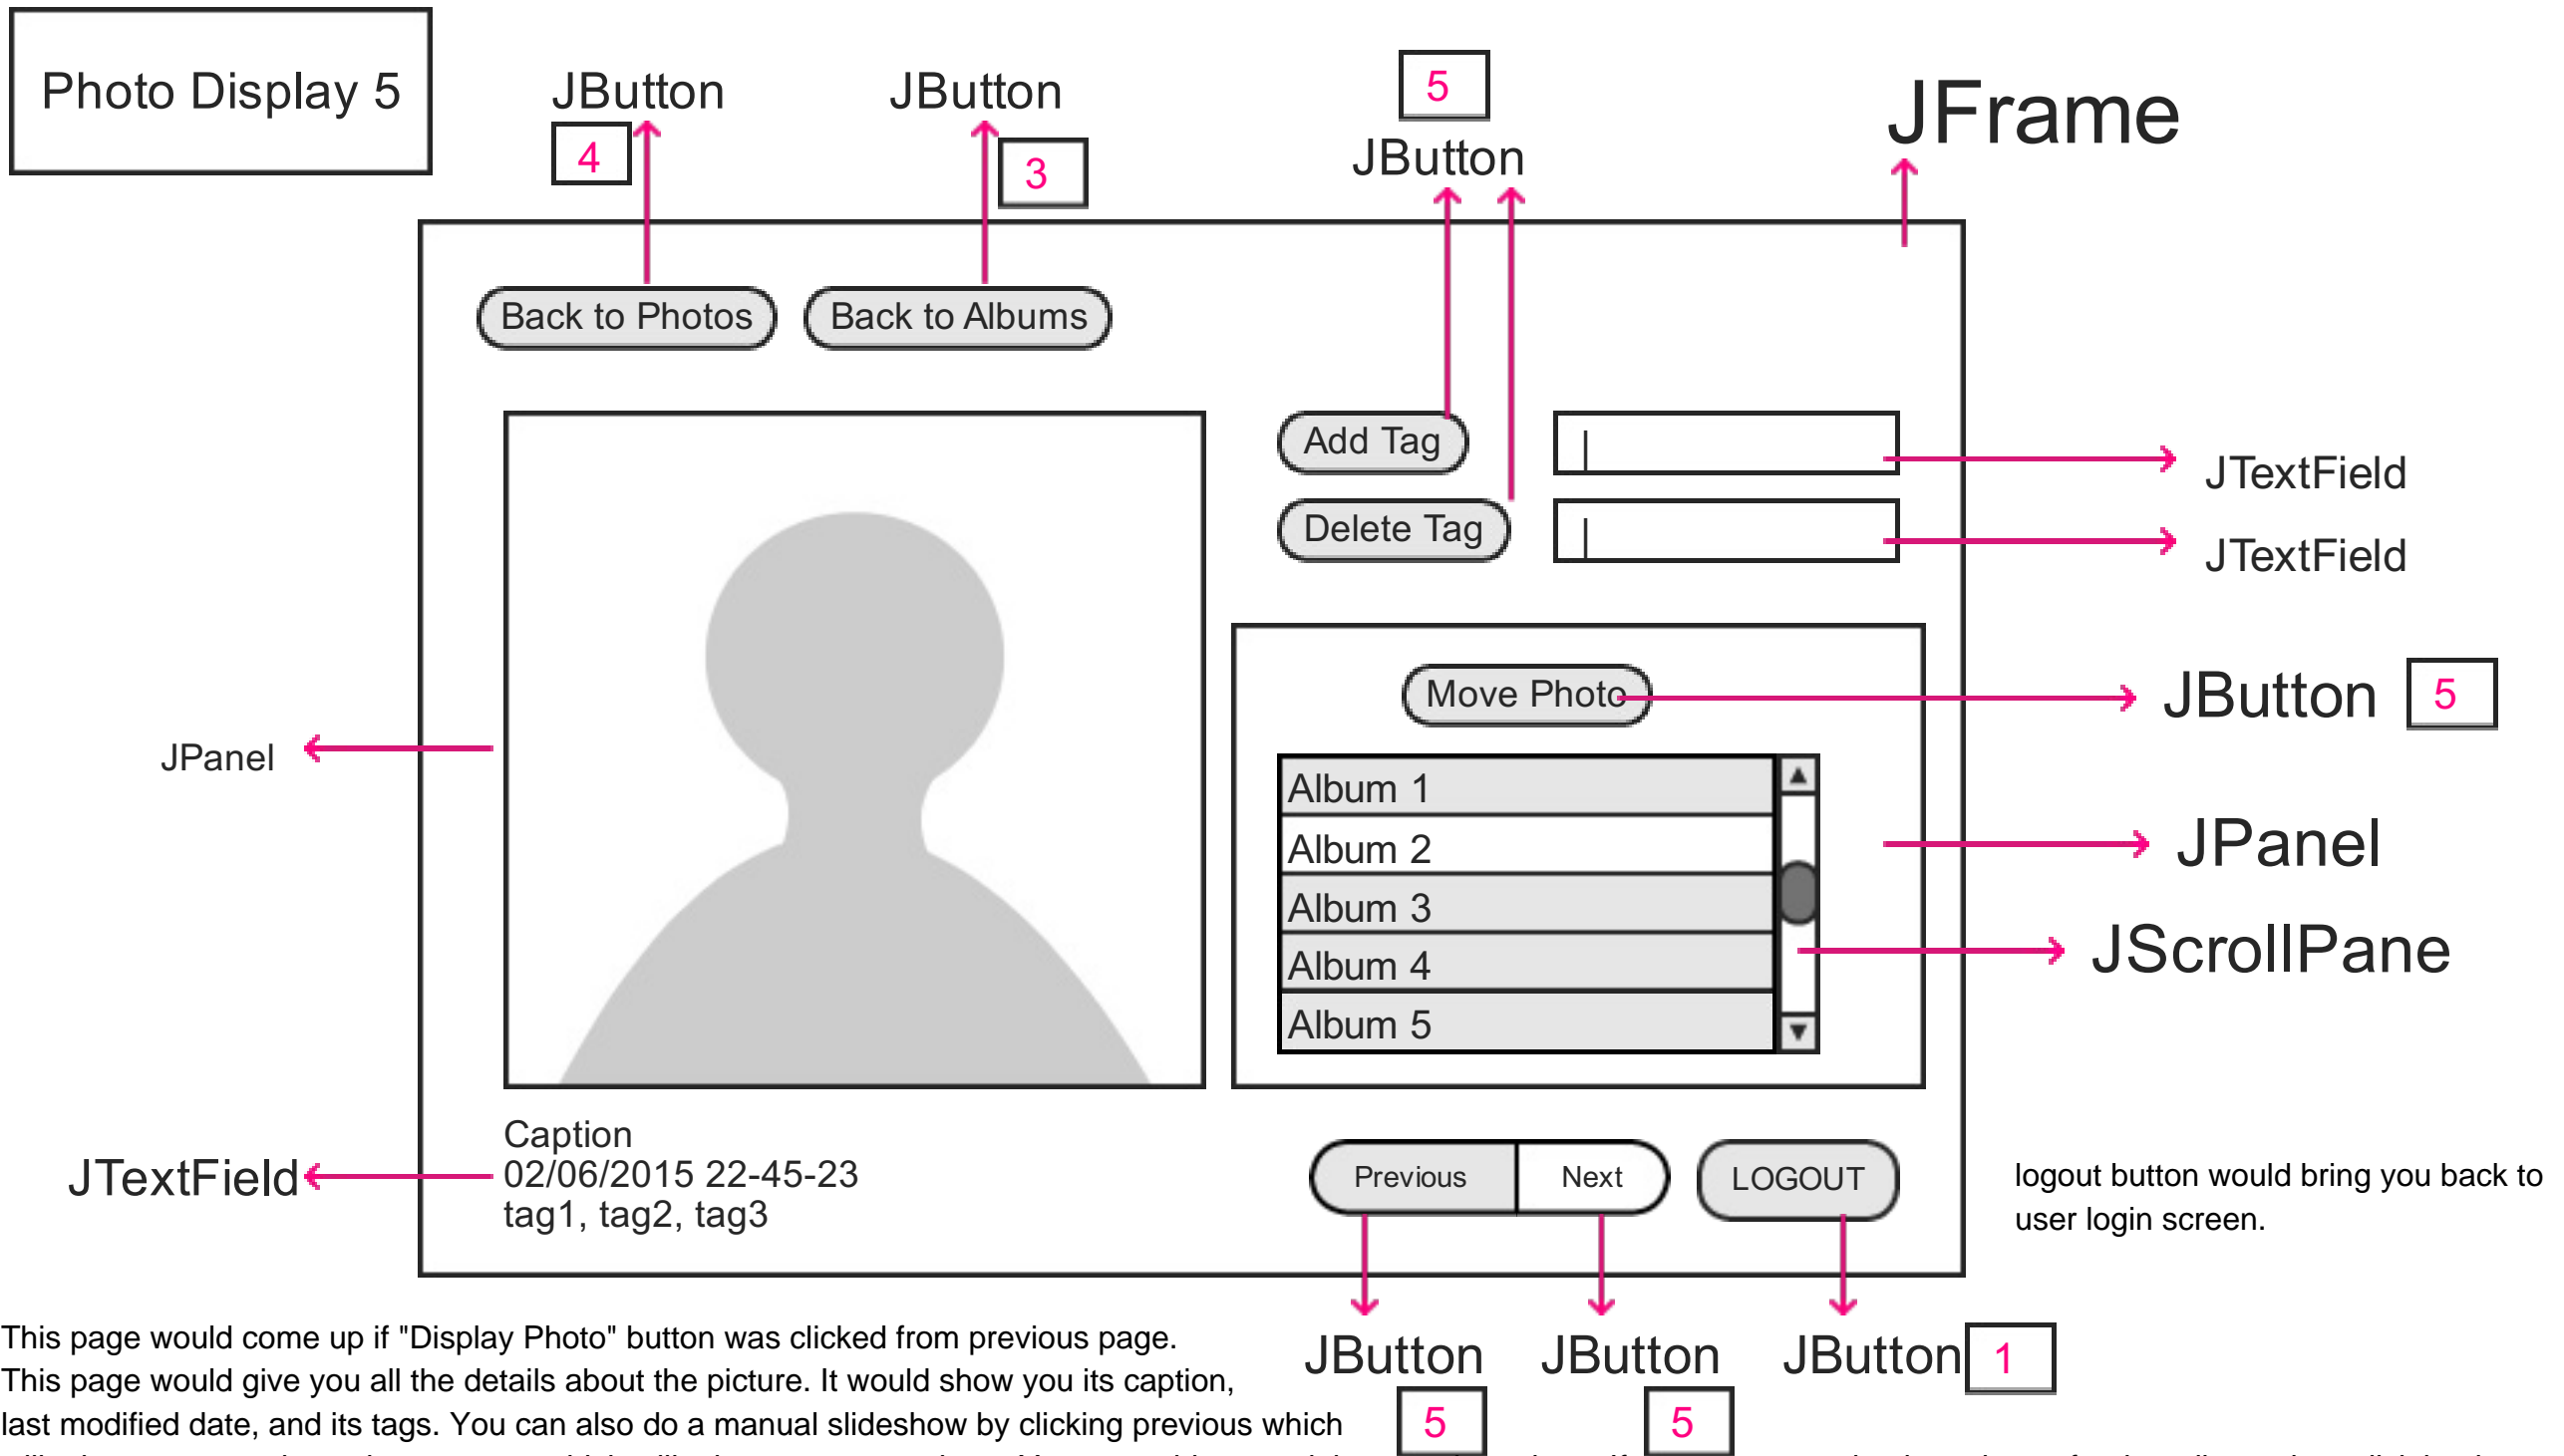

JTextField

This page appears after user has successfully logged in. This page will list all of the albums which belong to that user. On this page, selected album name's details will be provided under Album Info:.. Also, you can create album, delete selected album, or open selected album to view pictures. Search photos by its tag or date is also provided here. You can logout by clicking on logout button which would take you back to the user login page.

This will open when a specific album is selected a user presses open album button from previous page. This page will display all the photos in that album. You can add photo to the album, delete selected photo, recaption a photo. You can also go back to albums which would take you back to the previous page. Logout which would take you back to the user login screen. You can also display a selected photo by pressing "Display Photo" button.

This page would come up if "Display Photo" button was clicked from previous page. This page would give you all the details about the picture. It would show you its caption, last modified date, and its tags. You can also do a manual slideshow by clicking previous which will take you to previous photo or next which will take you to next photo. You can add tag or delete a selected tag. If you want to go back to photos for that album, then click back to photos or click back to albums to go see all the albums you have. You can also move the photo you are on to a different album by selecting the album name and clicking move photo.